A Curriculum Vitae ~ Richard Ramsay

Who is he?

Firstly, my name is Richard Ramsay. I am an enthusiastic and energetic graphic designer who has excellent print design and management skills, combined with a growing expertise in web design and multimedia creation.

Why should we hire him?

Simply, because I know what I am doing. I thrive on busy environments and put it to good effect managing a busy print franchise while at the same time fulfilling the senior designer role and overseeing another print franchise. I spent three months working for an award-winning design agency in California, producing their company website, and becoming an integral part of their strong, multi-cultural team. I am highly proficient in nearly every aspect of graphic design; print, web and multimedia; but I am always willing to learn new things.

Where does he want to be?

I am looking to become part of a successful design team that would embrace and encourage the sharing of knowledge and ideas to become stronger. I work strongest on print projects, however my recent experience allows me to jump from medium to medium.

What has he done?

To name a few, I designed, produced and collated content for three, 150 page catalogues, produced a multimedia heavy website, designed and built several websites using CSS, created concepts for marketing e-shots, produced those e-shots, designed, produced and proofed a large number of printed material including posters, leaflets and business cards, and managed a busy print franchise which relied heavily upon customer satisfaction and interaction.

Does he have a life?

I like to think so. I have previously been a member of my local football, rugby and ten-pin bowling teams. I currently play football every week and pool or snooker whenever the chance becomes available. I spent the most part of my life being a Scout, during which I achieved the highest award; The Chief Scouts Award.

What additional skills does he have?

Having used Adobe products for years, I have an extensive understanding of the current Creative Suites and other design based programmes. My experience has been advanced using both Windows and Mac operating systems although I do have a preference towards Mac. I have a broad knowledge of the design industry and ever growing experience, which allows me to adapt quickly to any environment and integrate with any team.

Does he have an online portfolio?

Better than that, I have my own website which includes samples of my projects. The website is updated often but the address stays the same, www.richardramsay.com.

When is he available?

I am available everyday for interview, or a nice hot cup of tea, preferably 'Scottish Blend'.
